Topinka may hitch up to compromise with towing firm

A long dispute between Chicago's infamous Lincoln Towing and State Treasurer Judy Baar Topinka may be near a conclusion. Topinka just got a favorable ruling in her class-action suit, but INC. hears the towing company, despite filing an appeal notice, is very interested in reaching a compromise. Part of a settlement would be full-page newspaper ads taken out by Lincoln, which was accused of charging up to $15 extra, on top of tow fees, to motorists who claimed cars with credit cards. We're told 9,000 customers could get refunds.
